President

Mr. Hammond-Chambers began working for the US-ROC (Taiwan) Business Council in October of 1994, as the Director of Corporate Affairs. In March of 1998, he was promoted to Vice President of the Council with additional responsibilities for office management, oversight of the staff, financial bookkeeping and a clear mandate to build out the Council's member/client base. He started to expand the Council's services with four sector specific weekly eBulletins, including specific editions for telecommunications, semiconductors, intellectual property rights, and personal computers (PC's). Mr. Hammond-Chambers rose to the position of Acting President of the Council in April of 2000, after Mr. David Laux stepped down from the position. In November of 2000 he became the youngest ever President of the Council.
